I am currently in undergrad at Belmont University; I major in Computer Science and Minor in Japanese. After 2 years of customer service and sales, I strive to bring a consistent and top quality experience to every customer. My commitment to my customers comes second only to my love for computers and technology. I have built computers-with Intel processors-for years. From convincing hard to sell customers (my cheap family and others) to invest into computers, I know I can bridge that gap between my skills and bring my passion to your team and customers. Aside from my words alone there are the countless sales I secured through my unwavering work with my customers.
