At the end of my two-week notice from Walmart, I immediately started this position. Here I learned the value of individualized customer service. By anticipating the wants and needs of every customer, I have developed outstanding customer service. From this position, I have gained additional experience in cashiering, photo-development, and stocking shelves.

During the summer of my junior year in high school, I worked my first job, a full-time position at Walmart. I ran registers at the front of the store, tidied aisles, and monitored the doors for my first month at this job. Here I learned that kindness and patience are simple necessities for excellent customer service. Eager to take on more responsibilities, I quickly learned every position in the front of the store. With my senior year of high school starting, I could no longer commit to full-time hours. At this point, I started looking for another job, and once one lined up, I respectfully gave a two-week notice.
